

MANY OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES IN N. Y. SUBWAY

Passengers Become Frenzied Mob Following Accident on New York Train.

A moment after the general push for safety was over, a south-bound express appeared on one of the opposite tracks and ground to a sudden halt as train and tunnel lights went dark. Power had been shut off to save the passengers from possible electrocution. But the darkness added to the panic and the passengers on this train smashed their way out of the cars and joined in the scramble for exits.

Men, women and children were dropping in their tracks as the fumes, smoke and excitement overcame them. Others of stronger physique and stronger nerves picked them up and dragged them along to safety. In the meantime Lexington avenue had been choked with ambulances and fire trucks and police reserves from three stations that were drawing a cordon to hold back the thousands that were attracted to the scene.

Pulmoners Fed.
Police, firemen and volunteers then plunged into the subway and brought out victims after victims, using the emergency exits and working by lanterns through the ventilation gratings. Those least injured were laid out in rows on the sidewalk to receive first aid, while the grave cases were taken to improvised hospitals in Bloomsdale department store and the Y. W. C. A. later to be removed to regular hospitals. Pulmoners were rushed to the scene and at one time 14 pulmotor operators were bending over prostrate figures on the sidewalk.

Several priests who happened to be in the neighborhood joined in the rescue and first-aid work, and in a few instances where victims appeared in a dangerous condition, administered the last rites of the church. Blame for the seriousness of the accident was laid on the Pyrene fire extinguisher by Capt. Thomas Bush of engine company No. 29, which was the first to reach the scene. Directed by Mayor Hylan to make a statement, he said:

Start Investigation.
"The smoke was not heavy from a fireman's point of view. I found employees of the Interborough fighting the fire with hand extinguishers, which are called Pyrene extinguishers, and as a result of liquid from these extinguishers striking the fire, deadly fumes were created. This Pyrene extinguisher is widely advertised and while it is very effective for gasoline fires, it is a deadly menace in a closed place."

Fire Commissioner Brennan later said a preliminary investigation indicated that the "noxious fumes" were caused partly by the burning of insulation and partly by the use of Pyrene extinguishers. A formal investigation will be started Friday to fix blame for the accident.

An executive of the Pyrene company at Newark, N. J., who declined to give his name, denied Pyrene gave off "deadly" fumes, though he admitted the extinguisher produced a gas which in a closed place might cause "fainting and temporary exhaustion."

Free Press Frank Hindey of the Interborough later issued a statement in which he denied the use of the Pyrene extinguisher had been the cause of the smoke and gases which filled the tunnel. The extinguisher, he said, had been installed only after it had been approved by the fire underwriters and the United States government as one of the most effective in putting out fires such as that Thursday.

BRAZILIAN REBELLION IS QUICKLY PUT DOWN
RIO DE JANEIRO, July 6.—(By A. P.)—Announcement is made by the government that the last resistance of the insurgents in Fortes Copacabana ceased at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon, federal forces entering the fort a few minutes later. The revolt which started Wednesday has now been completely stamped out, says the government.

N. Y. COPS BRANDED AS "BOOTLEGGERS"
WASHINGTON, July 6.—(By A. P.)—Charges that some members of the New York police force are identified with bootlegging activities in that city, were made in reports to prohibition Commissioner Haynes today.

Opening perturbed over the reports, officials of the prohibition bureau announced New York officials would be urged to weed out the alleged offenders in the police force.

Sink the 'Three-Mile Booze' Ships at Sea, With Passengers Too, Says Sunday

Shall United States ships sell liquor outside the three-mile limit? "No," says Adolphus Busch of St. Louis, former brewer, who charged in a letter to President Harding that the United States, in permitting it, is the "greatest bootlegger of all."

"Yes," says A. D. Lasker, chairman of the shipping board, who has ruled the practice legal and who points out that if liquorless American boats had to compete with foreign vessels that sold liquor to passengers, there would soon be no American merchant marine.

Here is what Billy Sunday, evangelist and one of old John Barleycorn's enemies, has to say of it:

By W. A. SUNDAY.
MORETOWN, Tenn., July 6.—(By N. E. A. News Service)—If there should come to be a possible loophole to justify such a ruling as Lasker has made, I think the fact that 46 states have ratified the 18th amendment, that the overwhelming majority of the people are in favor of prohibition and the flag waves over a lawless land would have had sufficient weight with a government official than to promulgate a ruling which would allow the saloons to laugh into our faces from a ship flying the Stars and Stripes, simply because she is outside the three-mile limit.

That ship is sailing under the Stars and Stripes and our laws, backed by our moral sentiments, and not under John Barleycorn's God-forsaken whisky and beer, soaked rag which we have torn down.

Drinking and carousing on board a ship flying our flag gives to the whisky-soaked nations of the world the impression of government sanction and the idea that "we are with you" while our slogan is "To hell with booze."

"To Hell With Booze."
Of course the 18-odd organized societies to oppose and fight the Volstead act and 18th amendment and its enforcement and all the bootleggers, anti-authority, anti-government, anti-liberty, hobo, riff-ruff, pug-nugly, rag-shag of society will cheer such a decision, while the brave, hard, moral and religious sentiment of our land will condemn it.

Prohibition has been the greatest Godsend to business this country has ever seen. Former breweries and distilleries and saloons have been turned into cotton mills, ice plants, packing houses, cold storage, into soda fountains, soft drink parlors, restaurants, shoe stores and ice cream parlors.

And so if the continued existence of the American merchant marine depends upon selling booze to the gang of booze hounds who go aboard, then let them sink.

EXPECT TO BEAT CLOTURE MOTION ON TARIFF BILL

side of the chamber. Sen. Borah, republican, Idaho, declared there should be no particular haste in passing the tariff bill when it was considered there faced congress a program of "subsidies, gratuities and bonuses" which, he asserted, would add billions of dollars to the burdens now being borne by the country. He referred especially to the soldiers' bonus and the ship subsidy bill.

Sen. Norris, republican, Nebraska, said that while he thought there should be some limitation on the tariff debate he did not think there should be any rule cutting off practically all discussion. Attacking the closure proposition, Sen. Simmons of North Carolina, democratic leader, in the tariff fight, said that while some republicans might think that time had been wasted in discussing the tariff bill, the people and the press of the country did not think so. He declared it was the duty of the democrats to "express the inequalities and inequities of the tariff bill."

McCumber Denies Claims.
Sen. McCumber, republican, North Dakota, in charge of the tariff bill, denied claims of the democratic senators that the committee majority was rewriting many items in the bill as a result of attacks from the minority side.

"New conditions are studied daily by the committee," he added, "in order to keep the rates adjusted fairly. We will go along meeting daily and with the same program, lowering or increasing rates as new conditions and information lead us to believe changes are necessary."

The closure discussion finally wore itself out late in the day and the senate got back to the bill itself rejecting 22 to 18 the amendment offered by Sen. Jones, republican, Washington, under which fresh milk from the Pacific ports of Canada could be admitted to this country only in bond through an American port.

A man shouldn't keep his friends in constant repair.

RAIN BOTH HELPS AND HURTS WHEAT

for growth in all sections, except in Minnesota and Wisconsin where warm weather was needed.

JUNE RAINY MONTH
NEW YORK, July 6.—(By A. P.)—Rain insurance companies that guarantee fair weather for baseball clubs, resort hotels, holiday vendors, golf players and vacationists got an awful wallop throughout the month of June and even a worse Fourth of July.

The four big companies engaged in this business which has been growing rapidly in the United States for the last 18 months, paid out more than $300,000 to policy holders protected against bad weather over the Independence day period, brokers estimated Thursday. Yet they all feel that the June rains were good advertising stimulating interest in their field.

On Sunday, July 2, the government charts reveal almost every square mile of land within 200 miles of the Atlantic coast from Florida to Maine was rained upon. The entire Gulf coast country was sprinkled and considerable parts of Texas, Arkansas, Kentucky, Southern Indiana, Ohio and middle Pennsylvania received a wetting.

July 4 was almost as bad. Draw a snaky line from the levees at New Orleans to the rock-ribbed coast of Maine and then look at the map. It rained July 4 on all the country east of that line.

The big hotels on the board walk at Atlantic City had nearly all taken out rain insurance for the holiday period. Concessions along the beach were similarly protected. The Giants at the Polo grounds had a $30,000 policy last Tuesday. There were only three days of June in New York when the weather was fair. The rest of the month it was either raining or threatening.

Do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw.

AIRMEN REACH DAYTON.

MANY RESPOND TO CALL TO ARMS BY IRISH GOVERNMENT

rendered Brugha, rushed upon the Free State soldiers with a revolver in his hand firing right and left.

The Irish provisional government's proclamation calling the people to arms, says in part:

"The national army has broken the supremacy to override the will of the nation. But there is a possibility of continued, sporadic action which makes an increase in the army establishment necessary. The elements which seek to substitute the spirit of anarchy for the spirit of order may attempt to continue their acts of brigandage. Such attempts must be summarily and drastically dealt with. The government confidently looks to Irish volunteers to respond to this appeal."

Cathal Brugha was operated on during the morning. It was very weak and the doctors were not certain he could live. Shipping was continuing in the streets early in the afternoon.

Free State sympathizers declare that De Valera has lost popular support because of his flight.

It is estimated that 1,000 persons have been thrown out of employment by the fires in Sackville st.
